Local Author Publishes First Book

Choices Made: The Street Years
by Christine McMahon

Hilbert, WI (July, 2005) With a rawness and grittiness, Christine McMahon has captured the life of her character, Jamy (a.k.a. Lord Chance), in her first novel, Choices Made: The Street Years.

Christine enjoys a good story and the craft of writing but didn't pick up the challenge of a novel until a few years ago. While jotting notes on a plot scenario, the basis of Choices Made: The Street Years developed.

"This novel has a life of its own. My character, Jamy, seems to be a living, breathing person whose story I need to tell," Christine shared. "The Street Years, is the first book of Jamy's life journey. I found that to know him, I needed to delve into his troubles of drug addiction, poverty and his struggle to free himself from these dangers. Using his artistic abilities, he works through his issues but his future is a daunting task and the Choices Made series began. The novels are a chronology of Jamy's life."

Readers beginning the series have stated, 'The characters' struggles had me quickly turning the pages to find out what happens next.'

Published by Trafford Publishing, Choices Made: The Street Years, is available on the book's website, www.ChoicesMade.com, Amazon.com and other on-line retailers.
